

Famous Sons Arrested

CHIEF Justice Fred M. Vinson is not going to Moscow and his name, therefore, will not become a by-word with the Russian people. Down in Virginia, however, his name is so well known that it caused a Virginia traffic cop to rub his eyes.

Among the students at Washington and Lee university happening to be the grandson of a late famous Virginia senator, the great grandson of a famed Civil war hero, and the son of a chief justice. All three were riding together near Lexington, Va., when arrested for speeding.

The policeman, proceeding to book them, asked their names. "Robert E. Lee IV," replied the first student.

It happened that he was telling the truth. The traffic cop looked up quizzically, but wrote the name down, then asked for the next name. "Carter Glass III," was the reply.

The cop wrote the name down, then queried the third student. "What's yours?"

"Fred M. Vinson Jr.," replied young Vinson.

"Then my names' Napoleon," exclaimed the flustered cop, and let all three boys go.

NOTE—Mrs. Vinson, wife of the chief justice, suggested to her son that after graduating at Washington and Lee he might want to take his law degree at Yale. A Yale degree, she intimated, might give him a better springboard into the legal fraternity. Replied her son: "Little Old Center college (Kentucky) was good enough for dad, wasn't it?"

Taxes Go Up in Smoke

Brass hats have kept it hushed up, but the air force wasted thousands of dollars taking worthless movies of the Bikini atomic-bomb tests. For some unexplained reason, the job was turned over to inexperienced officers.

Brig. Gen. Paul Cullen, then a colonel, had charge of the air force camera crews at Bikini. His masterpiece was a glorified, technicolor training film called "Able Baker Day," which he sent over to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to be edited. But even after the Hollywood experts added their touches, the picture was such a flop and so hostile to the army and navy that it couldn't be shown.

Instead the top brass ordered all the extra prints burned, and only two copies kept for the files. Since Cullen had gone ahead and ordered 48 prints, this made an expensive bonfire—paid for out of the taxpayers' pocket. Cost of the film alone that went up in smoke: $86,000.

Since the atomic energy commission had called upon all the armed services to cooperate in filming the Bikini explosions, the navy was working on a similar picture at the same time Cullen was making "Able Baker Day." But Cullen was in such a hurry to finish the air force picture first and scoop the navy that he sent an air force technical adviser under the pretense of helping the navy, though with secret instructions to obstruct and delay the navy picture.

The air force also made another $50,000 technicolor extravaganza of Bikini, called "Phantom Wings." This smelled so bad that it also was never shown again.

It was produced by Maj. James L. Gaylord whose total photographic background, up to that time, had been as a personnel officer.

And here is how the air force has rewarded the two officers who wasted so much of the taxpayers' money: Cullen was promoted from colonel to brigadier general, and Gaylord—in spite of his first flop—was placed in charge of filming the recent super-secret tests at Eniwetok for the atomic energy commission. He was supposed to have finished 24 films by October 1; so far, has delivered only five.

U. S. Army's Prisoners

Unfortunately, several thousand U. S. prisoners still remain in U. S. prisons for desertion, crime, or violation of discipline during the recent war. Even more tragic, some prisoners have suffered "permanent physical impairment" in solitary confinement. This was confessed in a recent circular issued by the air force inspector general.

Meant only for the eyes of the top brass, the circular warned grimly that regulations governing the treatment of these prisoners were "not being complied with."

"It is essential," the air inspector general stressed, "that prisoners in solitary confinement on bread and water be given one full meal every three days and that medical authorities examine them daily."

"Failure of medical authorities to perform the prescribed examination has, in the past, led to permanent physical impairment."

Christmas Decoration Fund Nears Goal; Streets to Be Lighted With Wreaths, Bells

Christmas will really be festive this year after the new Christmas street decorations are hung in the streets of Campbell in the near future. Lighted garlands, stars, wreaths, and Christmas bells will be the dominating feature of the decorations, which have been paid for by contributions of Campbell merchants and citizens.

Decorations will extend from Gilman Avenue on Campbell Avenue to Rincon on Winchester Road, bringing a definite holiday air to the community. The beautifully formed Christmas tree in front of the grammar school will also be fully lighted this year.

Members of the merchants committee working through the Campbell Chamber of Commerce wish to take this opportunity to thank all persons and firms who have contributed to the Christmas decorating fund and who make it possible for Campbell to have the finest Christmas decorations in its history. The goal of $1000 has nearly been reached and the decorations have already been ordered, according to Frank Accardi, chairman of the fund collection committee.

It is hoped that a start can be made in the near future in putting up the decorations. Any persons wishing to help put up the decorations is urged to contact Accardi. Selecting the decorations, the most elaborate yet seen in Campbell, were Mrs. Harry Blanchard, chairman, assisted by Mesdames I. O. McConnel, Helen De Rose, Y. O. Rhae, Tom Burnett, Kenneth Gray and P. N. Flagg.

C of C Urges Closing Nov. 11

The Merchants' Committee of the Campbell Chamber of Commerce recommends that all Campbell Merchants be closed on Armistice Day, Nov. 11 in honor of the local American Legion Memorial exercises.

The United States Post Office and the Campbell branch, American Trust Bank, will be closed all day, Thursday, Nov. 11.

Chest Funds Stay In Community; Goal $6000

The Community Chest drive is slowly reaching its goal of $6000, according to an announcement made by Ray Fish, director of the local chest. In urging that every contribution be made to the chest, Fish stated that all of the money contributed in Campbell stays in Campbell, and none is distributed in any other district.

A breakdown of the $6000 reveals that local organizations are the greatest beneficiaries. Following is the budget for the current year for which funds are now being solicited.

Boy Scouts $2000
Co-ordinating Council $1000
Milk Fund (which is divided between five local grammar schools, Campbell, Moorpark, San Tomas, Cambrian and moreland) $1300 Library $500
Scout Hall, upkeep $100
Campaign expenses $250
The balance is divided between the Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and the Y.M.C.A.

Solicitors for funds this year are members of the local civic organizations.

Nov. 15 Deadline For Xmas Parcels Overseas Delivery

Ira Grim, Campbell Postmaster, announced this week that all Christmas parcels for members of all armed forces overseas should be mailed before Nov. 15 in order that they be delivered on time. Requests from service men for parcels are not necessary.

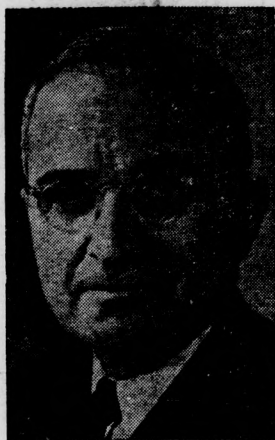

Parcels should be marked "Christmas Parcel" and special efforts will be made to deliver all Christmas packages in time. The term "armed forces overseas" includes the personnel of armed forces and authorized U. S. civilians employed overseas who receive their mail through an APO or fleet post office in care of the postmaster at New York, N. Y., or San Francisco, Calif., or an APO in care of the postmaster at Miami, Fla., New Orleans, La., or Seattle, Wash.

Christmas cards should also be mailed by Nov. 15. Packages should not exceed 70 pounds in weight of 100 inches in length and girth combined.

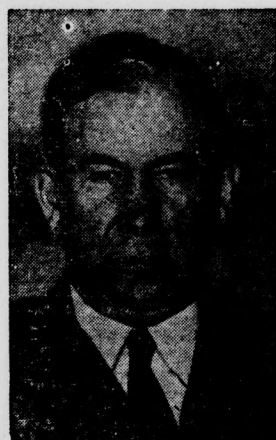

M. K. Bachman of 3 N. Central Ave. underwent an emergency appendectomy Saturday morning, but is now reported to be recuperating very satisfactorily.

The Executive Board of San Tomas PTA will meet at 7:30 Tuesday evening, Nov. 9 at the school.

Armistice Day Program Planned For November 11

Campbell Armistice Day services will be observed at the Campbell Union High School Auditorium by a mass meeting at 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 11, under the auspices of the Campbell American Legion Post No. 596.

Col. James McBride, chairman for the program states that, "In previous years, our local community together with the Campbell Post of the American Legion has journeyed to other nearby cities and joined in their observance of National holidays. This year for two reasons it is felt that we should observe such occasions on our own. The first reason is that we are very conscious of 'growing pains' and consider it altogether fitting that we should manage our own local celebrations. The second reason is that many citizens of Campbell, especially those who are Legionnaires, believe that in these days when our Nation is facing so uncertain solution of international problems, we should make special efforts to rouse the deep interest of all our citizens in his country's defense."

Dr. James H. Strayer, one of the finest speakers in these parts will deliver the address. The community is invited to join in this solemn and inspiring occasion.

Following is the program of the day. Ushers for the program are members of Post Number 2, Boy Scouts of America.

Patriotic Medley — The High School Orchestra; The Invocation — "Dr. Corwin Olds; Bass Solo — "The Recessional", 11 — Mr. Don Lev; Armistice Day — Mrs. Jon P. Morley; The Silent Tribute — "To the Colors"; Selection — The Orchestra; Introduction of the Speaker — Mr. Guy Smith; Address — Dr. James H. Strayer; The Benediction — The Rev. D. Kennedy; The National Anthem.

Funeral Services Held For Father Of LBen Howard

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Chapel of Koller & Hapgood, Palo Alto, for Luther Bennett Howard, father of LBen Howard of Campbell, who passed away Oct. 31 at the Palo Alto Hospital.

A resident of Palo Alto for the past 33 years, he is survived by his son, LBen, his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Virginia Howard, and three grandchildren, Joline, Sandra and Heather Howard, all of Campbell. He was the husband of the late El Dora Elizabeth Howard, and father of the late Lloyd P. Howard and Orah M. Howard. Also surviving is Mrs. Egerton D. Lakin of Palo Alto, a daughter, seven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Funeral services for Howard, who passed away at the age of 85 after a short illness, were conducted by the Rev. R. Marvin Stuart, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Palo Alto. Interment was at the Alta Mesa Memorial Park.

Ainsley Thanked For Office Use By C of C Officers

Laurance (Larry) Hill, President of Campbell Chamber of Commerce and Forrest A. Reese, Secretary and general chairman of Old Settlers' Day Celebration, to be held Feb. 22, 1949, in behalf of the officers, directors and members most sincerely thanks William Lloyd of the Ainsley Corp. for his generous contribution to the Chamber and the Old Settlers' Day Celebration committee's, by the loan of a room at 273 E. Campbell Ave. By the acquisition of this room it will alleviate the difficult problem of trying to find a central meeting place of the various committees to hold their meeting from time to time.

Ollie Jensen, Director of the Chamber's publicity committee, announces that the room will be ready for occupancy about Nov. 10. It was through the effort of Director Jensen that this room was procured.

Forrest Reese, General Chairman for the Old Settlers' Day Celebration announces that the general committee will consist of the Chairmen of the various committees, which will be announced in the near future.

The next meeting of the Campbell Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Country Woman's Club, Nov. 17, at 8:00 p.m. The speaker for that meeting will be announced later.

Cel Gerevas, of Campbell Hardware and William Harrison, of American Dairy will furnish refreshment after the meeting.

Walkie-Talkies Demonstrated To 6th Grade Pupils

Members of the 6th grade at the Campbell grammar school under the direction of Bill Shepard are busily studying the world of communications. Under this heading many field trips have been made, one of them being a visit to the San Jose telephone exchange.

Thursday afternoon the class studied the new field of walkie-talkies and field telephones when a group of National Guardsmen under the direction of Tech. Sgt. Rodney V. Gupton, Co. H, 159th Inf., and Staff Sgt. Clarence P. Graga, Hq. and Hq. Co. 2nd Bn., 159th Inf. came out to the grammar school with three walkie-talkies and field telephones and demonstrated the equipment.

Many other trips are being planned, among them one to the newspaper offices.

Prunes Big News At Co-op, Hunts; Packing Underway

Prunes are still big news in the Campbell area. While the California Prune and Apricot Growers dehydrating plant and blowers were busy closing down for the season after a successful run, Hunts Food, Inc., was just getting under way in the packaging and processing of prunes.

November 2 marked the last delivery of the over 15,000 tons of prunes which were dried at the Co-op drying plant during the season which opened August 13. Hosing down of the dipping area is now under way and the big steel doors are placed across the 48 tunnel openings. The local dryer is the largest in the country, according to E. W. Anderson, field department manager of the association.

Packaging and shipping of the prunes will probably continue throughout the year according to the demand, with only a small force being kept on. One hundred twenty-five people were employed at the height of the season.

The Co-op was first organized 1937 with only four tunnels.

At Hunts Foods, processing and packing of prunes got under way Wednesday with the Guggenheimer operation being moved from San Jose to Campbell. The local plant has been closed down since Oct. 12. This is the first time that prunes have been processed in Campbell, and the operations will probably continue until the Spring packing begins.

The order help is being called back to work first with a total estimated force of 24 to be employed when full packing gets under way.

Walter Murray Speaks On Home 'Facts and Faults' At Country Women's Guest Tea

The Annual Guest Day Tea of the Campbell Country Women's Club was held on Monday afternoon at 2:30 in the library building. Walter Murray, from the staff of the University of California Extension Division, was speaker for the occasion.

Murray, who has an A.B. degree from Stanford in English and an M.A. in Art from an Eastern Art School, talked on "Facts and Faults" of today's manner of furnishing the home. "The greatest fault I find in most homes," Murray said, "is the lack of color. My clients seem to think that if they have two colorful pictures and a pair of draperies that are something more colorful than ivory, then they have a 'colorful room.' We need whole walls of heavy green, or lemon yellow, or French blue. We need contrasts of color in upholstery and draperies against these walls. It is far better to make a few color errors than to have no color."

Murray illustrated the points with numerous new fabrics direct from Eastern mills. He also devoted some time to a question and answer period.

Mrs. F. A. Jacobson, president, welcomed the guests after which, Mrs. Margaret Vallandingham sang three delightful solos, accompanied by Mrs. Virginia Rutherford on the piano. A girls' string trio from the Campbell Union High School played during the tea hour. Members of the trio are: Beverly Clawson, violin; Mardel Sanders, cello, and Joyce Klassen, piano. Mrs. Gregory Parker led the members and their guests in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and one verse of "The Star-Spangled Banner." Mrs. David Sanders was at the piano.

The club rooms were beautifully decorated with a profusion of autumn flowers and candles. The tea table was centered with white chrysanthemums and the color was directed to the autumn shades through the use of pale yellow and green decorations on the tea cakes, mints and napkins.

Chairman for the day, Mrs. C. L. Ackerman, introduced her committee consisting of Mesdames D. R. Chamberlin, Norman La Veque, W. R. Morgan, Milton Robertson, Don Page, Nellie Rutherford, Luella Ryan and C. E. Williams.

The next meeting will be held on Nov. 15 with Mrs. E. J. Bohnett as chairman for the day.

A Capella Choir To Sing During 'Smilin' Through'

Footlighters are very fortunate in having the a capella choir from the high school, under the direction of Frank Triana provide music for them in between acts of "Smilin' Through." This group is a very fine addition to any program.

Ellen, the maid, is played by Alma Fanning. This is Alma's first appearance; however, she has been an active part of Footlighters for some time especially in make up which is a very important part of every play. Alma owns and runs "Alma's Beauty Studio."

Kathleen Dungannon, who plays the major female role in the first and third acts, is played by Lillian Morris, a newcomer to Campbell. Lillian, with her husband, has moved here from Fresno and while they are now living in Santa Clara they hope to make Campbell their home. Lillian is a housewife and her husband works for the Garden Valley Liquid Fertilizer Co.

Another new member to our group is a young bachelor, Warren Brown, who works for Pittsburg-Des Moines Steel Co. He plays the part of Kenneth Wayne the young lover and is doing a very nice job.

Troop 31 Starts Xmas Toy Drive For Needy Tots

Troop 31 of the Campbell Congregational Church wish to announce to the people of Campbell their plan for collecting used toys which will be given to the needy at Christmas. The members of the troop will take over the job of repairing these used toys and prepare them for distribution at Christmas to underprivileged children in the community. The patrols of the troop will be divided into teams and the district of Campbell will be searched for any toy or game that might be reconditioned. If you have such items tucked away in the corner of your basement or attic, please get it out and have at hand when the Scouts call at your door.

Collection will start in a week, but if you have the used toy ready it will save valuable time. That toy that is outgrown or broken will make some child very happy

Christmas morning. Troop 31 will supply the elbow grease to fix the toy or game, but we need help to collect them. Let's do our Christmas GIVING early this year. Remember there are only 51 toy repairing days 'til Christmas. Thank

THE FIRST BOAT-LOAD of displaced persons to enter this country under the 1948 displaced persons act will steam past the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor some time next month according to information from the International Refugee Organization here in Washington.

Under terms of the new law, 205-000 refugees from concentration camps of Europe may be admitted to the United States within the next two years if they meet the qualifications set up under the law.

Important qualification, however, and which apply to this first boat load, is that assurance must be given that each person to be admitted must have suitable employment here without displacing some other person and also must have safe and sanitary housing without displacing some other person.

With housing already at a premium and with thousands of Americans living in trailer camps and even less permanent homes, how this assurance of adequate housing can be given even before the immigrants leave Europe is a difficult one to understand.

However, such provisions and such assurances must be given under the law.

At the present time there are approximately 596,950 refugees of whom 340,000 have been classified occupationally in charge of IRO. Of this group, 75,964 are classified as agricultural workers, 25,826 as clothing workers, 12,567 as construction workers, 14,339 as domestics, and 30,437 as professional workers. Of the total, about 226,000 are men and 113,000 women.

THERE IS EVERY REASON to believe that the Taft-Hartley act will be given a thorough going-over in the 81st congress for the purpose of amending its weaknesses and eliminating some of the features which are held to be unconstitutional.

Among some of the amendments likely to be adopted will be provision for company officials as well as union officials to sign non-communist affidavits if they wish to use the national labor relations board; an attempt to ban industry-wide bargaining, which was knocked out of the original law, and to limit the scope of collective bargaining so as to eliminate compulsory bargaining on merit increases, health, welfare pensions and other employee benefit programs.

THE NEXT CONGRESS will see a fight to reserve exclusively the right to tax gasoline for the states and elimination of the federal tax.
According to a recent report, special motor vehicle taxes levied on American motorists exceeded three billion dollars in 1947, the highest tax of record.

There are indications that language of the act may be made simpler to eliminate the great latitude now prevalent for legal interpretation.

THE HEAT IS AGAIN BEING APPLIED to the large force of governmental publicity and information employees. The National Association of State Chambers of Commerce say that the budget bureau report showed there were 23,000 federal employees doing publicity, information and educational work for various government departments.

Whether the figure given is correct or not, the fact remains that about every government agency here in Washington or throughout the country has a publicity or public information department and, as a matter of fact, were it not for these departments the taxpayers would know little or nothing of what is going on in their governmental bureaus and agencies.

HAROLD A. KEATS, national commander of AMVETS, has charged that Carl Gray, veterans administrator, "is more concerned with the outcries of horse-and-bugy enthusiasts and misguided budgetslashers than he is with the welfare of the veterans he has sworn to represent." Keats' outburst came over a ruling of the veterans' administration on GI flight training under the GI bill which has knocked out thousands of applications for such instruction in flight training schools under the GI bill of rights.

"By reading into the law provisions it does not contain," Keats said, "he (Gray) has placed on the veteran an unwarranted burden of proof to show his vocational intent that has wrapped the whole procedure in a swathe of endless red tape.
His regulations have created wholesale confusion in his own agency in interpretation of the law. As a result of this wholesale confusion the veterans trying to take advantage of the educational rights granted them by a grateful people are getting only the royal run-around."

THE FARMER'S CORNER

By RALPH H. TAYLOR
(Executive Secretary, Agricultural Council of California)

A recent Washington news item reported that one of every ten persons working in the United States is employed by government—Federal, state, or local. Another story, a few days later, quoted former President Hoover to the effect that an adroit person can borrow money from no less than 28 Federal lending agencies and still remain inside the law.

These two stories point up, better than a whole series of investigations, the pressing need for a reorganization of the Federal bureaucracy to eliminate duplication of governmental services, as a necessary prerequisite to reduction of the huge tax load now borne by the public.

The report dealing with employment of persons on government pay rolls was based on Census Bureau figures showing 5.9 million persons derive their support from tax-supported jobs, out of a total of 58,330,000 persons employed throughout the Nation. The public pay roll is currently the highest in history.

There is no question that expanding governmental services require more workers to insure the orderly conduct of public affairs. It is plain, also, that the rearmament program, the Marshall Plan, and other important postwar projects have resulted in unavoidable increases in the public pay roll.

On the other hand when an authority of the stature of Mr. Hoover points out, as an example of bureaucratic mushrooming, that there are 28 Federal agencies from which a clever citizen could borrow money, it is apparent that the activities of these agencies—and no doubt the activities of other duplicating agencies—could and should be telescoped into a considerably smaller number with a considerably smaller pay roll.

As a matter of fact, that objective—the tailoring of governmental functions to fit the taxpayer's pocketbook—is the purpose of research being conducted by a twelve-man, bipartisan commission created a year ago by the 80th Congress and headed by Mr. Hoover.

This commission, within a few weeks, will assemble the reports of its experts and draft an overall plan for reshuffling and consolidating the vast, sprawling Washington bureaus and their field offices across the Nation.

Out of their reports a blueprint for reorganization of the entire governmental administration is expected to emerge, and ultimately to provide the basis for legislative enactments seeking to reduce the tremendous outlay of public funds now being spent by these agencies.

As an example of the needless spending of tax money on duplicating similar functions, whose duties and activities overlap both in Washington and in field offices. Representative Brown of Ohio (member of the Hoover commission) cites 75 agencies concerned with transportation, 37 with foreign trade, 64 with business relations, 22 with insurance, and 44 with agriculture. Proposals for wholesale realignment, consolidation, and elimination of such agencies may be expected.

The writer further pointed out that while no one challenges the need for an adequate defense, there is widespread dissatisfaction with the amount of "unification" of the armed forces achieved by the law passed by Congress about a year ago. In this connection Washington observers expect far-reaching and explosive proposals for further merger and consolidation of military activities which will not impair their effectiveness but will lower their cost.

Reliable sources also indicate that the Hoover commission may be expected to propose drastic changes in Federal veterans' policies, particularly those relating to medical care. As one observer phrases it, "officials of the Commission do not disguise their great concern over the present system of medical care of non-service connected disabilities," believing that "free medical care for so many people is taking the country a long way down the road toward socialized medicine."

RECALLING "NUTS" TO NAZIS AT BASTOGNE . . . Military Order of World War convention brings together in reunion three buddies of Bastogne, who are re-fighting the old battle at Miami Beach, Fla. In center is Maj. Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, who commanded the 101st airborne division at Bastogne and who won immortality when he replied to a German surrender ultimatum with a resounding "Nuts!" At right is Col. Robert A. Ballard, and left, Maj. St. Julian Rosemond.

REAL HUNT ENDS IN REAL THING—The national bear hunt trials held in Cadillac, Mich., became a real bear hunt when this ruin, chained at the end of the course, slipped out of his collar and mired across the fields. Tired and worn following more than a half mile of hot pursuit, Mr. Bruin is shown cornered by hounds.

Mr. Hoover himself summed up the situation in a statement in which he warned that the present tax burdens are so great and such a drain on the economy that they seriously curtail the whole economic and social advance in the United States. In Mr. Hoover's words "we have not socialized industry but we have come close to socializing savings into the government."

It was the late Senator Carter Glass of Virginia who once said "There is nothing on earth as immortal as a federal bureau." Perhaps the Hoover commission will challenge that immortality. The challenge will require courage; greedy bureaucrats will hardly relinquish their duplicating jobs without a struggle. Yet in the successful outcome of that struggle is the public's only real hope for relief from the present crushing tax load.

Successful Cake Sale Held By Cub Pack 9

Mothers of members of Cub Scout Pack 9 held a very successful cake sale Saturday morning in Maderia's Market, the proceeds going toward the expenses of the pack meetings, according to A. G. Stubbe, leader of Pack 9. Proceeds of the sale, which was given by the mothers for the benefit of the pack, will be used to purchase badges and other equipment. It was also announced that a Pow-Wow, or training program for those interested in Cub work, will be held Saturday morning under the auspices of the Boy Scout Council at the Jefferson School on Laurence Road. Everyone interested in cub work is urged to attend. The meeting will open at 2 p.m., with dinner being served at 6:30 for a nominal sum, according to John Duncan, chairman of the cub committee.

SJS Hoopsters To Play Montana

San Jose State will play its first game in the San Francisco Cow Palace this season, it was announced today by Walt McPherson, cage coach of the Spartans.

The Spartans will meet Montana University Jan. 5 in one half of a Cow Palace twin-bill which also slates a clash between St. Mary's and the Oakland Bittners. McPherson announced one other change in the Spartans 33-game schedule. They will play the San Francisco National Guard in San Francisco Jan. 19.

The Spartans have been working out for two weeks and McPherson indicated that none of his veterans are sure of posts on the Gold and White quintet. The San Jose mentor has been looking over more than a dozen new transfers and players up from the 1947 Frosh. He says that most of them look capable of winning berths on the squad and probably a couple of them will edge out last year's veterans for starting berths.

Polo Team To Meet Stanford

Coach Charley Walker's Spartan water polo team will play host to Stanford tonight in the rubber match between the Spartans and Indians. The White and Gold mermen defeated Stanford, 7-4, in the finals of the national AAU meet, but dropped a tilt to the Indians, 6-5, last week in Palo Alto.

The Spartan Frosh, undefeated in seven engagements, meets Palo Alto High. The Frosh won an earlier engagement, 10-5.

County Taxes Show 78 Per Cent Increase In Value

Taxable property in Santa Clara county for the current fiscal year, assessed at 290,460,505 shows a 78 per cent increase over the pre-war 163,369,240 valuation for 1941-42. California Taxpayers' Association said today, making public its study of trends in taxable valuations in California counties.

The 1948-49 taxable valuation of the county includes $89,819,435 in land, 163,694,220 in improvements, and $58,281,540 in personal property and money; deducted from the total, there was 21,334,690 in exemptions.

Over the state as a whole, taxable valuations for 1948-49 are assessed at $12,193,012,251, which is 66 per cent or two-thirds more than the $7,350,926,865 total value of taxable property for 1941-42.

Assessed value of taxable property throughout the state this year includes $4,700,080,532 of land, $5,432,069,205 of improvements, $2,577,998,502 of personal property and money, with $517,135,988 of exemptions.

Biggest relative increase in valuations for 1948-49 over those for 1941-42 were in Orange and San Joaquin counties, where total valuation more than doubled. Orange county showed an increase of 110 per cent and San Joaquin county showed an increase of 113 per cent.

Other counties which show increases in taxable values of more than two-thirds since 1941-42, include Contra Costa, 80 per cent; El Dorado, 88 per cent; Lake, 86 per cent; Los Angeles, 88 per cent; Riverside, 76 per cent; San Bernardino, 76 per cent; San Diego, 82 per cent; Santa Clara, 78 per cent; Solano, 84 per cent; Stanislaus, 70 per cent; and Ventura, 89 per cent.

Pointing to the relationship of taxable valuation to tax rate, the Taxpayers' Association said:

"Each cent of property tax rate today, with the increase in assessed valuation, brings in relatively more money."

Campbell FFA Boys Learn Prune Dip

Sixty-one members are now included in the Campbell Future Farmer Chapter, the largest in the history of Campbell High School. Members of the organization have picked 21 tons of prunes since school started under the instruction of Albert B. Smith.

The boys received practical experience on the Martin Farnham ranch in Cambrian district. They dipped 400 boxes of prunes and were instructed in the use of dehydrating equipment.

Twenty-six new members were initiated into the group last week. They include Carl Lynes, Douglas Melott, Jim Uchiyama, Dudley Hutchison, Frank Calabra, Alvin Ballard, Gene Lawler, Glen Gabbard, Marn Hirose, Stanley Eaton, Bob Brand, Dewain Lynes, Eddie Cox, Tam Payton, Bill Downing, Glen Taner, Carl Edmonds, Joe Gomes, Charsten Myhre, Dick Chapman, Harold Hughes and Walter Phillips.

Walsh Shows Vacation Pictures

Kiwanians were entertained on Thursday at their regular meeting with pictures taken by Martin Walsh on his recent vacation to Alaska. Pictures were taken from Seattle to Alaska on what is known as the inside passage with a railroad trip to Lake Bennett, with 1000 miles of very beautiful country along the route.

Clarence Nelson was chairman of the day and introduced Bill Cooper as the guest from San Jose. Also present were Coach Nodden and a high school student guest. Singing was led by C. P. Clauson with Lorraine Wood at the piano.

Methodist WSCF Convenes Nov. 11

Mrs. Joe Dahl, President of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church will preside at the business session of the general meeting convening in the Church parlor Thursday, November 11, promptly at 10:30.

Mrs. Nelson Cowdery, program chairman will tell of the work of the Methodist Church in Korea. Mrs. DeWitt Tranberg will lead in devotion. The evening circle with Mrs. Everett Nelson in charge will serve the noon luncheon.

Stephen Receives Birthday Wishes

Fifth birthday congratulations were in order last week when Stephen Fryar, small grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fryar of Campbell observed his anniversary with a party for his friends.

Present for the party were Mary and Royal Page, Mickey and Karen DeVita, Roger Dewitt and Jacquelyn Chappell.

Birthday cake and ice cream were served in the traditional birthday manner.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

There has been very little personal mudslinging in the 1948 presidential campaign, and practically none of the undercover rumor movements which are designed to persuade the electorate that this candidate or that is morally, mentally, or physically unfit for office. Most of the critical digs have been of a general nature—as, for instance, Mr. Truman's description of the 80th Congress as one of the worst in history, and Mr. Dewey's allegations that the present Administration is incapable of doing an efficient job. Thus, judged by political precedents, the campaign has been unusually clean, and no one of importance has attempted to make either of the principal candidates appear to be a crook of the first water.

A good many voters, perhaps, will look back with nostalgic regret on campaigns in which invective gave color and life to the proceedings, reprehensible as these weapons may be in principle. And to find the campaigns which were most enlivened in this fashion, we must look back quite a distance. In the October issue of the American Mercury, Robert Bendiner presents an amusing and instructive brief account of "Mudslinging In National Elections" which indicates how tremendously the times have changed in the matter of political manners and weapons.

Even Washington was not spared from the vitriol. On the First President's retirement, a newspaper observed that "If ever a nation has been debauched by a man, the American nation has been debauched by Washington." And, while he was in office, an opposition cartoon was published which showed the Father of His Country being led to the guillotine.

The opposition really turned on the blow-torches when Andrew Jackson ran. Due to a legal mix-up, the General had married his second wife before she was fully divorced from her first husband, and a second ceremony was necessary. An example of the use his political enemies made of this incident is found in the sentence: "Ought a convicted adulteress and her paramour husband be placed in the highest offices of this free and Christian land?"

In modern times, Grover Cleveland, when running against Blaine, was given the most savage treatment. Evidence was dug up to the effect that he was possibly the father of an illegitimate child. This was played to the hilt by the Republicans, in the hope that the voters would become convinced that he was an utter libertine. As the New York Sun put it, "We do not believe the American people will knowingly elect to the presidency a coarse debauchee who will bring his harlots with him to Washington and hire lodgings for them convenient to the White House." However, Cleveland's great record of probity and public service—coupled with the fact that Blaine had a very dubious Congressional background—was sufficient to offset this. Yet it was very close—a switch of a few hundred votes in New York would have beaten him. In this connection, it is an interesting fact that another piece of invective may have been the determining factor. One Republican slogan held that the Democrats were the party of "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion." This is supposed to have alienated the large Catholic vote in New York, and thus given Cleveland the state.

Al Smith came in for heavy abuse too. A clergyman asked rhetorically: "Shall dry America elect a cocktail President?" A pamphlet described the Governor as "the friend of prostitution." The Catholic issue was played up to the hilt. Herbert Hoover and the responsible Republicans had no part in this and considered such tactics contemptible. But they could not stop the vilification. And Mr. Hoover didn't get off scot free by any means. He was accused of fraud during his engineering career and other crimes.

To come down to the very recent past, Franklin Roosevelt was a constant target of the rumor mongers. A lunatic fringe put out pamphlets to the effect that he was really Jewish, was a sufferer from unmentionable diseases, and so on. Scurrilous attacks were made on Mrs. Roosevelt. Matters went so far that the late President once said that his enemies "have not been content with attacks on me, or my wife, or my sons—no, not content with that, they now include my dog Fala." Oddly enough, that was literally true, Fala being accused of viciousness and other canine sins.

It is a point of interest that vitriolic attack has been employed most freely and consistently against the more dynamic and colorful candidates—Jefferson, Cleveland, Roosevelt, etc. This caused Mr. Bendiner to say in his Mercury article, "Given the comparatively colorless pair of nominees we have, it was improbable from the start that the 1948 affair would ever dip to the low but gaudy level of past classics..." Thus, the emphasis has pretty much been on issues and principles rather than on personalities. But it's a safe bet that during some future election the mudslingers will dredge up the old ammunition again.

Successful Parenthood

MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

MORE and more we are coming to realize that clothes play an important psychological role in a child's life. But suppose we think back for a moment to the days when, in order to keep in the good graces of a maiden aunt, little Nelly was sent to school looking like a little brown wren. Nelly's aunt had given her some good brown remnant material, and, of course, Nelly would have to wear the dress until it wore out. In those days mothers used to think it didn't matter how children looked when they were with other children. All the nice things, the Sunday dresses as they were called, were saved for occasions when adults would be present. Then all the aunts would exclaim over the hours mother had spent making those hand-run tucks. And one of the aunts would be sure to exclaim, "My, she's a good mother. I hope Nelly appreciates her." And all the time Nelly was probably eating her heart out for a machine-made accoutrements pleated dress!

Nowadays we have come to realize that how children look in the eyes of other children is one of the most important points to consider in buying their clothes, right from the toddler age on through adolescence. You see, children dislike being different, not only because it makes them acutely self-conscious, but because other children have a rather cruel way of excluding the odd-looking child from their play. All this doesn't mean that if your child likes clothes that are quite impossible that you should still let her wear them.

In the meantime, let them have SOME of the things they want, even if they don't please you and above all, don't make them wear what they don't want. Most children have a good sense of color, so begin by letting them choose colors. They are also more sensitive to the feel of fabrics than grown-ups are, so don't force scratchy tweeds on them if they prefer corduroy. It is true that they haven't much sense of line, so you will have to train them to like what best suits their frames. Perhaps you are thinking that all this attention to clothes will make a child vain. On the contrary, it is usually the child who has always longed for becoming dapper and never had them who attaches too much importance to them when she can buy them for herself. And this brings up the matter of clothes allowance. We find that a twelve-year-old child is not too young to buy her own clothes out of her allowance, under her mother's supervision. Here's a quick summary of points to remember when choosing clothes for children:

First of all, a child's clothes should be so planned that he is unconscious of them; that is, they should be simple, easily cleaned, warm enough for the weather, light in weight, not bulky—just roomy enough for comfort and without any tight bands. In planning clothes for a child ask yourself the following questions: Can he play freely in them? Are they warm enough but not too warm? Do they allow freedom for his body—for growth, circulation of the blood, and muscle activity. Do they allow him to stand well? Are they put on and taken off easily and managed easily at the toilet? Will they wash well and wear well? And finally, does the child like them?

Seven cadets under the leadership of Col. M. W. Sheldon were commissioned recently. They are: Bruce Bobbitt, Philip Casentino, Richard Abinate, Jimmy England, Robert Thompson, Clifford Akers, and Earl Kailey. More cadets will be commissioned at a later date.

"At the Stroke of Twelve," is the play that the drama class put on for the San Tomas PTA, Sunday, Oct. 31. The players were: Betty Watson, Joan Schroeder, Delores Landrie, Joanne Hartman and Jasper Ciraulo.

Scores from the girls' sports day with Gilroy were, in the upper class division, Campbell two, Gilroy one, in the lower division Campbell nothing, Gilroy one.

Russ Bailey was elected president of the Spanish Club, with Elva Soper, vice-president; Gayle Schrader, secretary; and Barbara Eshram, treasurer. The club was organized last year, and is directed by Miss Elizabeth Thomas, Spanish teacher.

VANILLA

A HANDFUL OF PRIME VANILLA BEANS which when cured are worth about $8.00 a pound at present market prices. These beans were grown in Puerto Rico.

VANILLA—a lusty infant in Puerto Rico's family of agricultural crops—is beginning to howl for more attention as most infants will. Now grown in limited acreage, planters are beginning to devote more attention to vanilla beans as a potential "money crop" to implement Puerto Rico's largely agricultural economy.

Originally identified with Mexico where it was found in the 16th century, vanilla is grown largely in Madagascar and other French islands in Oceania and the Caribbean. The French possessions however, are still awaiting post-war adjustments in trade agreements with the United States which may materially affect their previous quotas of nearly a million pounds annually exported to the United States.

Mexico's volume which reached about 200,000 pounds in 1945, has been drastically reduced by blights and droughts.

While Puerto Rico urgently needs such a crop as vanilla to partially replace coffee or other crops that have been unprofitable in recent years, no one really expects that vanilla production will do more than provide a supplemental source of income for Puerto Rico which depends largely on sugar, pineapple and tobacco.

While sugar is worth $250 an acre and pineapple about $600 an acre, vanilla is worth about $100 an acre.

A member of the orchid family, the vanilla vine is a delicate and temperamental plant that demands conscientious attention and management. Rainfall of about 75 inches per year has been particularly conducive to Puerto Rico's growing success with vanilla which has been producing a crop the third year after planting.

Rebekahs Plan Nov. 13 Party

Ada Rebekah Lodge met Nov. 2, in Campbell IOOF Hall. Fern Fellman, N. G., presided. Most of the business session was spent discussing the card party to be held Nov. 13, in the Campbell High School gym. The first nomination of officers also took place. The Noble Grand announced an initiation drill for Sunday afternoon, Nov. 7, at 1 p.m. in the IOOF Hall. Jessie Silberbauer announced the next meeting of the Stitching Club and invited all to attend.

The Noble Grand also announced a practice for the entertainment for the District Good Fellowship Night on Nov. 10 at the home of Blanche Gilpatrick. Bonnie Silberbauer, Dist. Deputy President, reminded the members of the official visit of Alice Schultz, President of Rebekah Assembly, Nov. 8, in San Jose at Josephine Lodge.

Irene Hodges was chairman for the evening. Catherine Cali and Rena Fryar assisted her. The social evening was spent playing whist. A variety of fruits was offered as refreshment. Next meeting will be initiation Nov. 16. Past Noble Grand in charge.

Christian Fellowship, a group of students under the direction of C. P. Klassen, typing instructor, is holding meetings on Wednesday noons. Many activities are being planned for the year.

A Debate Club has been organized and will present debates on various subjects during the year. The club is being organized and directed by Dean Chamberlin, of the English department.

Members of the Girls' Glee Club, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Parker, gave their first performance of the year Tuesday, Oct. 26, at a PTA meeting. They also sang Nov. 2, at a meeting of the Girls' League.

AMERICA'S most cheerful, 14-year-old family tradition in popular entertainment returned to the airwaves recently when local outlets of the ABC network brought back the famous "Original Amateur hour." Ted Mack, veteran performer and former understudy to the late Major Bowes, presides over both shows. . . . Mack, who has appeared in theaters everywhere, helped Bowes discover thousands of "amateurs" who have since become successful. . . . "Farm raised youngsters are usually the most talented applicants," Mack contends.

Ted Mack

The first second-generation Quiz Kid girl was born recently to Mrs. Margaret Merriek Scheffelin, 20-year-old ex-Quiz Kid now married to an air force officer. . . . She shares second-generation honors with nine-month-old Philip Teeter, son of ex-Quiz Kid Barbara Hutchinson. . . . The airwaves are filled with range music these days, with with Aury and Rogers singing and acting on their shows. . . . The latest one to be smitten by the bug is Tex Ritter, who is negotiating for a network series.

Platter Chatter

Things are slowing down these days in the record world but there are a few new releases that should be able to supplant "A Tree in the Meadow" and "It's Magic" fairly soon. . . . Capitol has several good ones you might look up. . . . One is the very popular "Whiffenpoof Song" done up handsomely by the Pied Pipers. . . . A yummy rendition on the reverse of that favorite "Dream" will lull your worries away. Nick Lucas, that crooner of yesterday, has been signed by Capitol in line with the modern trend toward banjo-playing and singing troubadours. . . . Nick's first release consists of two songs he popularized in his hey-day and they're still very bit as good—"Tip Toe Through the Tulips" and "Side by Side". . . . Capitol has also re-issued Dennis Day's recording of "Danny Boy" backed by "Phil the Fluters' Ball," for these who like Irish music and lifting Irish voices.

Telephone Service Doubled in 10 Yrs.

In the last 10 years, the number of telephones in service in the Pacific West has doubled, it was announced today by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. A gain of more than a quarter of a million telephones in the companies' coastwide territory thus far in 1948, has brought the total to an all-time high of 3,659,000.

W. E. Williams, district manager for the company, said that the increase this year is about five and a half times that of the corresponding period in 1938, when a gain of 45,800 telephones were recorded. Ten years ago—after 60 years of operation—the company had 1,829,000 telephones in service.

Williams said, "More than a million of the 3,659,000 telephones were added since V-J Day, reflecting the tremendous development of the coast, and the all-out effort of the company to provide service for the huge demand. Construction expenditures of the company during the present record expansion period are running at the rate of half a million dollars every day."

In the Campbell exchange, Williams added, the number of telephones has increased 1,213 in the last 10 years.

Scout Pow-Wow To Be Held Nov. 6

The stage was set Monday night for the annual Cub Scout Pow Wow to be held on November 6, 1948, at the Jefferson Union School.

Members of the various committees met under the direction of Ronald Hunter, the general chairman, to discuss plans and make final arrangements for this new and most unusual type of Cub Leaders' Pow Wow.

The Handicraft section was represented by Ralph Prickett of Pack 4, the Games Section by G. H. Larsen of Pack 19, the Ceremonies and Entertainments Section by C. T. Mitchell, the Midway by P. Prokop, the Exhibits by Jack Sturgess, and the Physical Arrangements by L. C. Curtis. Members of these committees present included Mrs. Velma Harris, Mrs. Lois Schrader, A. W. Schrader, Mrs. Rae Foersterling, F. W. Foersterling, Roy Downing, and Jack Greenwood. Chet Bartlett and Frank Olsen represented the Council office. Star Dust In Her Eyes

A SHORT-SHORT STORY
BY MARION SIMMS

LILY'S fingers went flying over the keyboard of her typewriter, making alphabetical rhythm of the last page of the detailed synopsis of "The Rouged Lady."

The new novel, still in galley sheets, had been suggested as a "natural" for Barbara Benton. Dick Rowell, who directed all of Benton's pictures, was plenty worried over the way she had been slipping this past year, and had asked that the story department concentrate on finding a good vehicle for her.

She was too excited to eat any breakfast, but she did stop in the kitchen for a glass of milk.

"The Rouged Lady" looked as though it might turn the trick.

"Hurry it up, Lily," called Miss Cook, head of the script department. "Mr. Rowell is on his way over to pick up the synopsis."

"Yes, coming," answered Lily, as her fingers continued to fly over the keyboard like little white birds. In her subconscious mind, she was picturing herself as the star of "The Rouged Lady." Some day her chance in pictures would come, she knew.

The great Mr. Rowell, very tweedy today, came in, conferred with Miss Cook, and then strolled over to Lily's desk to wait for her to finish the page.

"Very lovely," Lily heard him say. Glancing up, she saw he had been watching her at work.

Her face flushed. She was still thinking of the compliment as she hurried through a sandwich and chocolate malted and then rushed over to have a manicure at Sadie's Beauty Shop, on the edge of the studio lot.

Lily was very proud of her hands and spent a great deal of time on them. Paul said they were the most beautiful hands he had ever seen.

When Lily got back to the studio after lunch, Miss Cook called her over.

"I have just received a memo from Mr. Rowell," said Miss Cook. "He thinks he can use you tomorrow for some extra scenes he is shooting on 'The Phantom Lover.' You are to report to Makeup Department at 9 a.m. But don't get too excited, my child. You know, Mr. Rowell is as temperamental a director as we have on the lot. However, good luck."

The hours until evening dragged for Lily. She could hardly wait to see the look on Paul's face when she told him. He had always hooted a little over her screen aspirations. He didn't want any movie star in the family, he said. What he wanted was to make enough money at the service station so that Lily could be Mrs. Paul Graham exclusively, and not have to slave as a typist in the National Film Studio.

Paul was surprised, but as Lily feared, he was not at all pleased with his young wife's good news.

"Listen, Lily, I don't like that Rowell guy. I've seen him plenty when he drives in for gas, and I didn't like his type or the kind of friends he has. I don't want you working for him, do you hear? Just make some excuse at the studio tomorrow and get out of it."

"Get out of it!" Lily's eyes were dangerous pin-points of anger. "Listen here, Paul Graham, this is just the chance I have been looking for since the first time I went into a play at Hollywood High School. This is my big opportunity, and neither you nor anyone else is going to interfere, do you hear?"

From that point the quarrel enlarged to violent dimensions and Paul went to spend the night on the cot in his workshop over the garage.

The alarm awakened Lily early the next morning. She was too excited to eat any breakfast, but she did stop in the kitchen for a glass of milk.

Paul was already there, fixing coffee and toast. He looked glum, but made an attempt to snap out of it.

"Listen, Lily, honey, I'm sorry about last night; I guess that I'm just a jealous fool."

Ignoring his pleading voice, Lily flounced out of the house. This was a very special day in her life. The Melrose bus wasn't good enough for her today; she'd take a cab.

She had almost forgotten the unpleasantness by the time she reached the studio. She went right over to the Makeup Department.

When Lily reached the apartment that night it was dark. A foreboding came over her. Besides, she was very tired. Paul always reached home ahead of her.

Maybe he was fed up by last night's quarrel, and had left her. She was near tears when she opened the door and started turning on lights.

At 7:30 Paul came in, very tired and grimy. "Would have phoned you, but I was very busy," he said briefly. "How did things go for you. Say, you haven't been crying?"

"Listen, Paul Graham, you go and take your shower, and I'll warm up the dinner. Then I'm going to tell you what a little idiot your wife has been. If you want to leave me, I won't blame you a bit. But I have to tell you before I can eat a bite of food."

"Paul—look at me. I was going to be the big star. I even squandered our money riding to work in a cab this morning. Already starting to be the ritzy actress. But do you know what Rowell wanted me for? Oh, not my face. He probably doesn't even know what I look like. He needed a good looking pair of hands to photograph a scene showing Benton opening a letter. You know what stubby fingers she has. So they used mine! Paul, haven't I been ridiculous?"

Paul leaped up from his place in the nook and came over to Lily. "Darling, that's wonderful."

Picking her up in his arms, Paul went into the big comfortable chair by the fireplace.

"Now I have news, too, Lily. Old man Green had a talk with me today. Says he's getting too old for the long hours he's been putting in. He's going to give me an interest in the service station. And he has a couple of other ideas in mind, too. He kept me there tonight talking about it. Then you can give up the studio job, like I always hoped."

"Oh, Paul," said Lily softly, settling back with a sigh of content in his arms, "what an important day it has been—for both of us."

Methodist Youth Hold Work-Shop At Local Church

The officers of the Methodist Youth Fellowship in each Methodist church in Santa Clara County will meet in the Campbell Methodist Church next Saturday for an all-day Work-shop. Beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning and concluding at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, these youth leaders will discuss and plan ways of making their youth meetings more interesting and more effective in their local churches.

Rev. Chester Ham, of the Willow Glen Methodist Church, will be the adult advisor for the day of planning. Harold Taylor is the president of the Campbell Methodist Youth Fellowship, and as president will be the host for the youth leaders from the other 14 churches.

Spartan Eleven Wins Over COP Tigers, 14-7

Riding high on a five-game winning streak, the San Jose State Spartans step out of conference competition Friday night to entertain the Brigham Young Cougars at San Jose.

The Golden Raiders climaxed a successful comeback campaign on Saturday night by dropping the previously unbeaten College of the Pacific Tigers, 14-7. The victory was the fifth in a row, (after losing the first two games) for the Spartans, who now rest atop the California Collegiate Athletic Association standings with a spotless record in three starts.

The battle against the Tigers was one of the best West Coast clashes of the year. In a terrific exhibition of line play, the Spartan forward wall outplayed the mammoth Bengal line, and it was this department which brought victory.

After battling the Tigers to a 7-7 standstill in the first half, the Spartan line kept COP in a hole most of the second half by the simple expedient of holding them to a net gain of 24 yards for the last 30 minutes of play. The magnificent punting of Eddie LeBaron kept the Tigers in the game throughout.

The victorious Spartans, showing the unified spirit which has brought on the latest string of victories, hoisting their coaches to their shoulders and carried them from the field after the final gun.

No individual was responsible for the victory mantle. Little All-Coast Center Bob Pifferini, Tackles Jack Faulk and Harley Dow, Guard Dick Harding and the whole Spartan line played their best collective game. Harry Russell, Pete Denevi, Fred Silva, Al Cementina, Capt. Billy Parton and Marv Johnson stood out defensively in the backfield.

Until he was injured early in the second period, Parton accumulated good yardage off tackle, with Johnson, Fred Mangini, Cementina and Schemmel adding more ground. Parton set up the first score with a 64-yard run after taking a short pass from sophomore quarterback Gene Menges. Schemmel crashed over for the six points. Menges played his best game, completing 5 out of 11 tosses for 111 yards. Veteran Chuck Hughes, hindered by a sore shoulder, played a short time, but completed two vital passes to Junior Morgan which set up the winning touchdown. Denevi carried across from the one for the marker.

SURGING FROM THE RUNWAY with a thrust of six rockets added to its normal 14,000 horsepower, the United States navy's Lockheed Constitution takes off on an experimental flight designed to test the effect of rocket jets on large aircraft. Tests conducted with the giant 180-passenger ship have shown that the rockets do not affect control of the airplane in any way and serve to shorten takeoff run by approximately 25 per cent.

Timely Garden Tips

By ED CARMAN

Have you ever thought of growing your own table decorations, or center pieces? There is really very little work to it and they are something a little different. Right now there are several kinds of bulbs which can be sated outdoors and then brought in to bloom where they can be a living bouquet.

One of the easiest and most used for outdoor blooming is the paper white Narcissus. Any bowl will do, it need not have drainage in the bottom. Place an inch or so of small gravel in the bottom then set the bulbs on this with enough pebbles to hold them upright. Fill with water then place in a dark cool spot until the roots form (about two weeks) then bring out into the light. If possible keep under 70 degrees during the day for best results.

Another very popular bulb is the hyacinth. These work best in a rather shallow open bowl. Bulb fibre or a light rich soil is better than gravel. Place the bulbs about an inch and one-half from each other and the edge of the bowl. These should be placed in a dark cool spot for about eight weeks so the roots can develop. Then bring them into a warm room but keep them in the dark. Cover the bowl with a paper bag or cloth. When the flower spike is three or four inches long they may be exposed to the light but not the full sunlight.

The hyacinth can also be grown in the special hyacinth glass. Place a little charcoal in the bottom fill with water till it just touches the bottom of the bulb. Set in a cool dark place till the flower truss is well formed then bring out into the light but keep it out of the direct sunlight.

Muscari or grape hyacinth has fascinating spikes of tiny round balls of blue. Grown about the same as the Crocus they should be crowded to make a nice showing.

Although not a bulb, lily of the valley can be forced in a bowl. These come in little root divisions called pups and should be put in the bowl rather close together. Plant them in sphagnum moss and keep them moist. After the leaves and flower spikes are rather well developed gradually admit the light and bring the temperature up to 75 degrees or a little more.

These are some of the bulbs which can be bloomed indoors. Several others will do very nicely. All follow the same general pattern. After placing in the pan they are placed in the dark so the roots can develop and then brought out to bloom.

The crocus is best grown in an open shallow pan or bowl. Place 8 to 10 bulbs an inch or so apart in a six or eight inch container. Use a light sandy soil with a little bone meal mixed in or bulb fibre. Water and set in a dark spot. When top growth has begun bring them into the light but keep in a cool spot.
